

How Successful People Achieve Their Goals

There are habits and behaviours that sets successful people apart from others, these attributes are clearly responsible for their achievements overtime, we will look at few of them here:

1. Planning and Timely Actions

Planning and timely action both plays an important role in achieving major goals. Successful CEOs and professionals like architects, engineers and project managers for example have developed strong planning skills and timely action approaches. When working toward annual goals, it is always helpful to plan 1-3 actions per time to be accomplished on timely basis. Avoid procrastination as much as possible.

2. Self-Discipline

The possession of self discipline enables you to choose, and then persevere with actions, thoughts and behavior, which lead to improvement and success. It also gives you the power and inner strength to overcome addictions, procrastination and laziness and helps to follow through whatever you are trying to achieve until it becomes very successful.

3. Frugal Living

In reality, wealthy people are the most conscious when it comes to spending, they spend on things that gives them a form of value back or returns, whether in the now or in the future. This is the main reason why the money keeps coming back. They also focus more on needs than wants. Living frugally is one of the surest ways of achieving your goals and aspirations. It gives you the opportunity to filter out unnecessary things that makes you loose money and helps you create a system of return.

4. Skills Acquisition

Skill is a key used in opening doors of fortune. As water is very essential to human life; so is skill needed in the life of every serious minded human being. Skills can do a lot of great work in the life of every living soul. Lack of skills is a major cause of corruption. The importance of skill acquisition includes self employment, diverse job opportunities, employment generation, effective function, and crime reduction.

Bill Gates, Elon Musk, Zuckerberg and the rest got to where they are today because they've acquired certain skills and were able to nuture and turn these skills into a cash cow. Your degree is definitely not enough, you need to develop or learn a skill that you can then use to create solution to various life's challenges and get rewarded for it.

5. Seek Expert Help

Disappointments and challenges are part of the picture when you work on challenging goals. Fortunately, many other successful people have sought outside inspiration to get through tough times. Always reach out to those who are already successful in your field or niche. They always have the answers to most challenges based on their own journey and personal experience.

6. Networking

Always be on the look out for Networking in your field or industry, there are people in your industry who are ready to show you the ropes only if you are willing to network. Those who are ahead of you can help you bridge that gap that separates you from your desired destination or goals.

Luck, only if you count where u were born and the kind of brain and personality you were given as parts of luck

Brain's got nothing to do with it, as some of the smartest people are not among the richest.

Personality is too abstract, some of the richest men have shitty personality (eg Steve Jobs and Jeff Bezos) while some are cool (Gates, Buffet).

You can't pin success down to any known factor beyond luck. If there was a formula to success you think billionaires and millionaires would be exclusive?

Bill Hwang lost about 10 trillion naira in 48 hours. Was he dumb, or unlucky? If he's dumb then how come he became a billionaire? If he's smart how come he lost it all in less than 10 days?

7. Ruthless efficiency in execution and completion of tasks. If they have to cut off social media, cut off certain people, cut of social activities, stay up all night, meet people/collaborators who can support, etc, they will do it. They are not emotional about things that wouldn't add value. There is a certain ruthless streak in highly successful people.

Most people don't know this and when you tell them, they say "It is harsh, no na..."

8. Consistency. Excellence isn't what you do once, but maintaining a high standard and performance repeatedly. This is what highly successful people do. It takes ruthlessness, it takes sacrifice, it takes being tunnel-visioned.

Give ONE, just ONE example of someone born lazy and dumb in a slum in a poor country who won $1m lottery. Search with Google and everything, YOU CAN'T. And even if hypothetically they did win, the dumb and lazy aspect will guarantee they'd lose it in no time.

Sford

There's lots of people who won, and I'm quite sure you Googled it. Winning lotteries is absolute luck, with the odds in the tens and hundreds of millions.

Whether they lose it is another matter, that's not what we're talking about.

The fact is, there's no formula for success; billions of smart people work hard everyday, but only a very small percentage will succeed.

And if you're hitching your own wealth aspirations on such nonsensical books that tell you how to become rich, then you're dumber than a pile of rocks: the authors use your gullibility to make their own money.

Keep buying those books!

We are saying almost same thing but not quite. The big difference is why you are wrong about the $1m - to win it you have to first be in a position to PLAY. A lazy and dumb person in a slum in a poor country will NEVER be in a position to enter a million dollar lottery. That's why such a winner CANNOT exist.

So, like I said at the beginning, your luck theory will be right ONLY if luck includes circumstances of birth and upbringing and the type of brain and personality you were given. If luck does not include those things then you'd be wrong.

You're reaching, in a completely fallacious way.

All it takes to enter a lottery is to buy a single ticket for peanuts.

Lottery is gambling, which is predicated on nothing else besides luck or chance. It does not require that you be anything more than a ticket holder.

There's no way personality or intelligence plays any role in the deterministic outcome of pure chance.

Luck is about being at the right place and at the right time by random chance.

If you still insist personality or brains are the ingredients, does it mean you're not wealthy because you yourself lack both?

First of all such lotteries are not in such countries. Secondly $1, the minimum to play, is not available to such a person, it is not peanuts to him.

If you remove circumstances of birth and such, then wealth is NOT due to luck. Just as your chances of dying in a plane crash is not luck - it is zero if u never fly. So also your choices affect how wealthy you become, not just luck.

PAINS BEHIND SUCCESS STORIES

The pains behind success stories are not what you can just imagine in the blink of an eye. Bloods and tears are prices paid by many. Stop being disturbed that no one sees you, or no one knows about your struggles.

They did not see the way you persevere and keep fighting through the hard days. You kept pushing and pushing until the pain stopped. Late night you are always stayed up, you woke up early, they did not see. You sacrifice the parties and the date nights. Money came in slowly ;

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6pPDRP8W3WY>

YOU ARE NOT ALONE. That is just life. Bill Gate says- "Life is unfair, get used to it". There is no reason for you to be complaining. All you have to do is to get focused and keep going. They will all see you when you become successful.

Each time I'm down because of the "They did not see me" syndrome, I quickly remind myself "Everyone is busy fighting their own battles". And trust me, if you think so deeply about this, some people are really willing to be with you in the dark days, but they are also busy fighting their own battles.

Hi there! Achieving your career goals in Nigeria requires a bit of everything. And no, you can't use ideals from western countries to succeed in Nigeria. This is a different terrain altogether. You have to be smart, ruthless, hardworking and most importantly, courageous. Also, don't forget the place of putting God first. It is a long uphill battle and you need all the help you can get. Leverage on relationships you have built over the years to get what you want. You need to have a plan of action at all times. Be the CEO's friend, even if it requires you to kiss ass sometimes. Do it. It is only a means to an end. This does not mean you should put work away and drink with the boss. You're only going to get yourself fired. All the same, all the best to you!

1. Self-talk
2. Belief that success is possible
3. Doing your homework
3. Study the successes of other people's careers
5. Be observant and learn from others' failures as well as successes
6. Get feedback on your progress regularly, ask for ideas on how to improve, and don't give up hope if you get rejected or knocked back down to square one occasionally - all successful people experience this too!

IIENSTITU offers online courses for professional development. Most of these courses are free and available to anyone with an internet connection.

The Acclaimed Social Psychologist behind this groundbreaking course, Dr. Serena Wiedman, helped us design this course in response to requests by our own students who wanted to start learning now but were not able to enroll in regular classes because they weren't citizens or permanent residents of the US (although you don't need citizenship or residency - just an internet connection). These online courses are designed for adults living overseas, professionals constrained by their occupations or obligations, students working full-time jobs without easy access to educational resources, military service members who don't always have the time and resources for le

If this nonsense were real the author would be among the billionaires they mentioned

Success is 99% pure luck

What do you mean success?

And what does success means to you?
